held Wednesday, noon, at the Lions Inn. The public is invited to view the program and support the newly formed association in its efforts to promote Lompoc for industrial growth. Kranig is chairman of the association.

Economic development efforts to be spotlighted by committee

Economic Development of the Lompoc Valley will be in the spotlight here next Wednesday when a joint Chamber of Commerce and City organization kicks off a major effort to bring diversified industry to the area.

Labeled Lompoc Valley Economic Development Association, the group will be led by business and civic leaders appointed by the City Council and Chamber of Commerce. An initial budget of $45,000 has been set to cover the first year of operations. The Council, on recommendation of a special committee headed by Councilman Sol Lefkowitz, has already placed $20,000 in a special account for use of the new group while a target amount of $25,000 has been set for the business community.

Robert Kranig, named president of the association at a recent session, has announced the purpose of the kickoff luncheon meeting Wednesday will be to give the business community an in-depth briefing on the purposes and benefits to be derived from the association's program.

"First and foremost on our priority list is the recruitment of a fulltime economic development director, who will have no other responsibilities beyond the securing of a wider range of payroll opportunities and solid economic growth for our area," Kranig said.

Following months of planning sessions and preparation, the Lompoc effort will enter a very competitive field with thousands of U.S. cities that have employed full time professional developers and who have enjoyed substantial economic expansion as a result, Kranig said.

Top leaders of Santa Maria Developers will attend the meeting and outline some of the effects that a similar program has had in their city during recent years. A detailed slide briefing of the proposed Lompoc program has been prepared for presentation by George Smith, local auto dealer and member of the committee.

LBJ hospitalized for light pneumonia

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—Former President Lyndon B. Johnson has a mild case of viral pneumonia but is getting well fast, doctors at Brooke Army Medical Center said today.

Johnson was confined to bed in a suite at the same hospital where he spent 12 days last spring with a heart ailment. Doctors said the former president's current illness is not related to the heart trouble.

"Former President Lyndon B. Johnson has a mild viral pneumonia," said Lt. Col. Robert L. North, chief of the medical department at the Army hospital.

Scheduled for noon at the Lion's Inn on Wednesday, January 20th every business and professional person in the Valley is invited to attend.

Leadership of the new organization includes the following: R. L. Kranig, Manager of Red Star Industrial Service, Inc., President; Had Burger, owner of Sunset Chevrolet Co., Vice President. Other members of the committee include Dr. Mel Kranseler, optometrist; Virgil Phelps, Union

Sugar Co. manager; Al Pico, Sporting Goods merchant; Mike Renault, Lions Inn owner; and George Smith, owner of Smith-Beebe Toyota. Ex-officio members are Fran Underwood, General Telephone Co. manager and Oscar Johnson, Southern California Gas Co. manager. Gene Wahlers, Lompoc City Administrator and Ralph Patey, Chamber of Commerce executive manager are advisors.

Jury foreman suggests purchase of Isla Vista

By DICK PAUL

The University of California "should seriously consider" buying Isla Vista now, Grand Jury foreman William Rea Jr. reported today.

Rea, in leading off the 1970 Grand Jury's report handed up to the presiding judge of the Superior Court, gave these reasons for urging "immediate exploration" of the matter:

—The county taxpayer would not suffer because University of California, Santa Barbara would be required to provide all the services for Isla Vista such as patrol, street lighting, health and education.

—The multi-million dollar Deveraux property to the west of the campus can only be integrated with UCSB when the problems of Isla Vista are solved.

Rea said he also felt there should be a reserve panel of 10 Grand Jurors, to augment the regular panel of 19. Reserve jurors could step in on a protem basis when regular ones became ill or could not serve because of employment. However, he felt law enforcement and narcotics study committees should come from the first drawn panel of 19 "whose main job is to alleviate congestion of the courtrooms."

Rea suggested that the other committees, acting as ombudsmen and women for the county taxpayers, "should work all year, meeting at least twice a month," to study in depth the problems of the county.

Rea provided an example of the need for such an endeavor.

"For instance, in 1970 we requested an investigation by the state attorney general's department of 'leakage' in regard to certain cases. We were told that neither funds nor manpower would be available. If more grand jurors were impaneled, they could investigate such a problem."

Israeli commandos hit deep in Jordan; destroy Arab base

By United Press International

Israeli commandos struck 28 miles into Lebanon by land and by sea early today and destroyed an Arab guerrilla coastal base complex used to send frogmen to Israel on kidnap missions and run guns and hashish to the occupied Gaza Strip, military spokesmen reported in Tel Aviv.

Lebanon protested to the U.N. Security Council against the four-hour strike near the ancient Phoenician port of Sidon, called the attack politically motivated and said it could destroy the Middle East cease-fire. The attack, 32 miles south of Beirut, was the deepest strike since Israel's attacked the Beirut airport on Dec. 28, 1968.

In Washington, Secretary of State William P. Rogers said the Israeli strike does not affect the over-all situation in any way, that it was "not particularly significant" and that he was "not too discouraged" over the outlook for a further extension of the ceasefire agreement.

The actual raid was directed against the Mediterranean harbor of Ras E-Shak, eight miles south of Sidon where St. Paul is said to have rested while being taken to Rome as a prisoner in Biblical days. Israel said its commandos blew up a moored raft carrying a rocket launcher believed intended for attacks against Israeli coastal towns.

There were conflicting reports from Beirut and Tel Aviv on effectiveness of the raid. Israel said the attackers moving in by boat and by helicopter killed at least 10 terrorists and wounded many more. The guerrillas said the raid was repulsed and they inflicted "large numbers" of casualties on the Israelis.

New York police in "walkout" over back pay dispute ruling

NEW YORK (UPI)—Mayor John V. Lindsay said today New York City is "fully protected" despite the refusal of thousands of policemen to leave stationhouses except to deal with emergencies.

The mayor and Chief Inspector Michael Codd, after a two-hour conference at City Hall, told newsmen the police department was providing full coverage of high-crime areas and full protection against emergency situations.

Codd said senior officers and detectives, working long hours on an emergency basis, were patrolling critical areas.

The wildcat work stoppages by the rank and file of the 30,000-member Patrolmen's Benevolent Association (PBA) began Thursday after the state's highest tribunal ordered a multimillion dollar pay issue back to the lower courts.

Most patrolmen showed up for today's 8 a.m. shift but many refused to leave the stationhouses. Scores of radio patrol cars were parked in the streets outside the stationhouses. Only a few foot patrolmen were seen on the streets.

The work stoppages ignored an

Storm moves down coast; flood threat

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — An intense Pacific storm moved towards the coast today, bringing more heavy rain and a threat of flooding in California.

The new storm followed on the heels of a blizzard which was described as the worst in nearly 20 years in the Sierra.

Skies were fairly clear over the mountains today, and transcontinental highways were reopened to traffic.

The new Pacific storm was centered about 350 miles off British Columbia today and touched off warnings all along the coasts of Oregon, Washington and Northern California.

Winds of more than 100 miles an hour were reported along the Oregon coast.

Two 200-foot ships were floundering off Grays Harbor, Wash., with the captain of one reporting the deck completely awash.

Off Cape Mendocino, Calif., 75-mile-an-hour winds ripped a Coast Guard lightship from its station 4.5 miles offshore. A Coast Guard cutter was dispatched to help a rescue of the 23-man crew if it became necessary. Search and rescue aircraft were hampered by the storm.

In California the weather bureau said moderate rain would continue over the northern half of the state today, with high winds along the coast.

The River Forecast Center warned there would be "significant rises" on rivers during the weekend as the warm rains melt recent heavy snowfalls at low elevations and fill the streams.

Sadat, Podgorny dedicate Aswan dam

ASWAN, Egypt (UPI)—Presidents Anwar Sadat of Egypt and Nikolai Podgorny of the Soviet Union joined today in inaugurating the Aswan High Dam—built to fulfill the age-old dream of harnessing the world's longest river, the Nile.

Podgorny was present to mark the fact that Russia played a major role in financing and constructing the dam after the United States, Britain and the World Bank withdrew their aid from the project in 1956.

The 366-foot dam cost $1 billion and was 11 years in the building.

After using a pair of goldplated scissors to cut the green ribbon, Podgorny and Sadat then unveiled a granite plaque honoring Gamal Abdel Nasser, the late Egyptian president who guided the dream into being. Nasser died last September, and today was the anniversary of his birth.

earlier plea from Lindsay to "respect their oath of office" and return to their jobs. The policemen also ignored a television appeal from PBA President Edward J. Kiernan for the men to return to work. Kiernan later told newsmen "There's a very, very strong chance of a strike."

Lindsay said he had directed the city labor relations director to begin immediate round-the-clock negotiations with the PBA and the unions representing city firemen and sanitationmen. All three uniformed city services are involved in wage contract talks.

The mayor did not indicate whether he would seek a court order directing the PBA to end its work stoppages.

In addition to Codd, Lindsay also conferred with acting Commissioner William H. T. Smith, Chief of Patrol Elmer Cone, assistant Chief Inspectors Arthur Grubert and Gordon Dale and acting Chief of Detectives John Kinsella.

Drilling hearings end; pre-judgment denied

By DICK PAUL

The two-day Interior Department public hearing on applications of Union Oil Co. and Sun Oil Co. for additional drilling platforms in Santa Barbara Channel ended in Santa Barbara Thursday with a government spokesman denying that Washington has already decided to allow them.

Assistant Interior Secretary Jack Horton, responding to widespread rumors voiced by a number of hearing witnesses that the permits have already been quietly approved, told the hearing audience:

"The Interior Department has not reached a decision and will not until those in the highest authority have had a chance to study these proceedings."

Horton said he felt the testimony was "honest and substantial." He termed the issue of whether or not to allow continued channel drilling as "technically, economically and even emotionally complex."

After another barrage of testimony Thursday — much of it once again directed against the oil industry — hearing officer Dean Ratzman, of the Interior Department's Sacramento office, said he would take under advisement requests by anti-oil advocates that the hearings be continued until the Interior Department's report on environmental impact of the two platforms is made public.

Many of the same officials and organizational representatives delivering attacks Wednesday on the Union Oil proposal for a third platform returned Thursday to concentrate their fire on Sun Oil's request for a second and "final" platform on their government lease.

Interior officials were asked to consider requesting Sun Oil to utilize its program with that of the adjoining Phillips Co. so that platform number could be minimized. Sun claims it is losing revenues while Phillips' drilling drains its leasehold.

Nogle announces plans to seek re-election

School Trustee Archie Nogle has tossed his hat in the ring in a bid for reelection in April.

Nogle was elected to the board in 1967 but he had served previously on the old Union High School District before it became part of the unified district. In a previous story in the Record, it was erroneously indicated that he had been appointed to the board in 1967.

Voters will go to the polls on April 20, to elect three trustees. Nogle is the second of the three incumbents to enter the race. Jack Helman, current board president, announced his candidacy last Tuesday.

John Beattie, the third incumbent told the Record last night that it was still too early for him to decide. "I'm reluctant to commit myself at this time. I'd like to retire because there may be some other qualified person who could take over, but I think we need someone on the board with business experience." He said he would make up his mind sometime in February.

Beattie is a businessman-rancher; Nogle a businessman; Helman an industrial executive.

Candidates have until Feb. 25 to enter the race.

South Vietnamese battle Communists in Cambodia pass

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—South Vietnamese troops helping Cambodians clear Highway 4 reported occupying Stung Chhay Pass today and battling Communist troops in the hills around it. Premier Lon Nol was expected to go to Saigon next week to seek more aid.

As the South Vietnamese fought at Stung Chhay Pass, 90 miles southwest of Phnom Penh, a Cambodian column pushed toward nearby Pich Nil Pass—a second point controlling the vital lifeline highway between the Cambodian capital and the oil refinery port of Kompong Som.

U.S. spokesmen refused to confirm or deny reports from witnesses and American sources that U.S. Air Force B52 Stratofortresses had joined the battle Thursday.

"I know of no announcement," a U.S. spokesman said in Saigon when asked about the report.

But South Vietnamese spokesmen said South Vietnamese aircraft were providing tactical air support for the Highway 4 operations.

Government sources in Saigon said today Cambodian Premier Lon Nol would visit the South Vietnamese capital Jan. 20 for talks with U.S. and South Vietnamese leaders on aid in Cambodia.

No medical evidence smog linked to cancer

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The state Department of Health and the Air Resources Board can find no medical evidence linking lung cancer with smog.

But the agencies reported that other respiratory diseases, such as emphysema, bronchitis and asthma, are aggravated during smoggy days.

Both findings are contained in a study ordered by the 1970 legislature into the health effects of air pollution.

The health department said it has been studying the "long-term trends" of smog on cancer and chronic respiratory diseases in Californians.

"There is no evidence that respiratory cancer is associated with community air pollution in California," the department said.

"There is convincing evidence, however, that interference with lung function in persons with chronic respiratory disease occurs during periods of elevated air pollution in Los Angeles, it added.

"Air pollution in California may be playing a role in causing or significantly aggravating emphysema and other nonmalignant diseases," the report said. "A contribution to the number of asthma attacks may occur during periods of photochemical smog."

The November 1970 report—obtained by UPI Thursday—also said that smog can cause other than only respiratory health problems.

It said there is "information suggesting that the fatality rate of patients hospitalized with myocardial infarction."

Sierra Nevada snow storm leaves Truckee buried

RENO (UPI)—The worst storm in the central Sierra Nevada region since 1951-52 eased off today after leaving two feet of snow at nearby Truckee, Calif.

Trans-Sierra highways and schools in Nevada and the Lake Tahoe Basin were closed as the snow level at Truckee reached 200 inches, 102 less than for the 1951-52 season.

A new storm is heading for the Oregon and Washington coast but forecasters expected it to bring only rain to the buffeted California and Nevada areas.

In San Francisco, forecaster H.J. Shellum said the "snow level will be lifting to 5,000 to 7,000 feet" in the mountains in the northern part of California.

As the storm lifted, the California Division of Highways reopened the eastbound lane of Interstate 80, the Donner Pass route, to light vehicles with chains and predicted the westbound lane would be opened "soon."

U.S. 50, the Echo Summit route, had been opened previously to all traffic.

The same storm, stretching in Oregon, collapsed the snowladen roof of a department store in Salem, slightly injuring one of the 30 employees.

Agnew tells welfare complexities

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew says the solution to welfare is "much more complex" than Gov. Ronald Reagan's proposal to put able-bodied recipients to work on government projects.

The number of welfare recipients who are able-bodied and able to work is not as great as one might at first suspect, Agnew told Reagan and 300 local government officials Thursday at a packed meeting in the state capitol.

The vice president also said, "I'm not at all sure that the idea of putting these people into government jobs is the best way to move them productively into the private sector of employment."

He noted once people go on the government payroll "they're pretty hard to get off."

Reagan and Agnew later lunched together and afterward the governor said the vice president had been confused about at least one element of his proposal.

"The vice president was seeing this in view of those who have suggested actual government employment," Reagan said. He explained that under his proposal the recipients would work on government financed projects but not be regular government employees.

Agnew said he "wasn't being critical of Gov. Reagan. His is an important suggestion and a good one." But he added a "high percentage" of recipients are "unable to go into productive work."

Of California's approximately 2 million welfare recipients, about 447,000 are able-bodied adults. The rest are aged, blind, disabled or children. Only 534,000 of the over-all total—or 2 1/2 per cent—are men.

Reagan told the meeting—sponsored by the county supervisors—association—he envisioned a time when "a father wouldn't be sitting on the front porch when the kids come home from school waiting for the welfare check."

"He'd be coming home later in the day with a paycheck and a little self respect. At the same time he'd be acquiring a job skill and a habit of working."

A "public work force" was the key element of Reagan's welfare reform proposal outlined Tuesday in his state-of-the-state address.

In Agnew's extemporaneous remarks, he said:

"While I appreciate the fact that Gov. Reagan is reaching very hard for the answers to prevent the abuses that we all know are taking place... I still believe that the answer is much more complex than would allow to be solved simply with the idea of creating government jobs for those on welfare."

Agnew put in a plug for President Nixon's welfare reform plan, which Reagan strongly opposes as too liberal.

Agnew—who sees eye-to-eye with Reagan on most matters—said Nixon's plan "allows a way to attempt to reserve this terrible cycle on welfare recipients that goes on generation after generation."

Under the Nixon plan, rejected by the Senate, a family of four would receive a guaranteed annual welfare payment of $1,600.

Union Oil had claimed it needed a third platform to further minimize oil spills still coming from its lease, but opponents charged Union merely wants to make more money by producing more oil there.

State Sen. Robert J. Lagomarsino, R., 24th District, opposed the applications. He said if they and subsequent others were allowed, the state would find it difficult to sustain its own ban on drilling in the state tidelands.

Assemblyman W. Don MacGillivray, R., 36th District, also expressed opposition. He said he noted "with alarm the 'hell bent, public be damned' attitude by Interior Department concerning channel oil developments."

Joining them was Lt. Gov. Edward Reinecke who also urged a decision denying the permits.

Sun Oil Co. vice-president John H. Douma said Sun and its associates have suffered "serious losses" due to the long delay of the government in granting the requested permit.

A chief spokesman was Fritz Hunsinger, board chairman of Vetco, Inc., of Ventura, manufacturer and designer of drilling pipe.

Hunsinger said: "I can't buy a five-year moratorium on drilling just because of one or two unfortunate accidents. You don't close down the airlines or railroads when they have an accident."

Hunsinger added: "I know how the people of Santa Barbara feel, but we must think of the economy, too. The crying need now is for more revenues and less taxes on property owners." The oil industry, he declared, supplied tax money in large quantities.

30 supporters of Chavez held

FT. LEWIS, Wash. (UPI)—Police have arrested 30 supporters of Cesar Chavez's United Farm Workers who demonstrated here to protest the Army's policy of using "scab" lettuce to feed military personnel.

Displaying a flag with the words "United Farm Workers AFL-CIO," a crowd of about 60 protesters said they wanted to hand out literature critical of the government's policy of using lettuce not harvested by workers represented by Chavez's group.

The protesters, who arrived by caravan, were permitted to pass through the entrance to Ft. Lewis but were stopped by Military Police inside the camp.

Grand Jury aims at addictions

The 1970 Grand Jury narcotics study reveals that "more than 40,000 persons" in Santa Barbara County have used marijuana.

In making its findings today on the subject, the Grand Jury narcotics committee added that it is estimated the county "spends over $1-million annually" to enforce existing laws regarding marijuana.

The committee is recommending that steps be taken to modify existing laws regarding marijuana to reduce the offense to misdemeanor category rather than a felony.

Also, the committee recommends, local enforcement efforts should be increased to apprehend the abusers of marijuana and encourage them to seek medical and psychological help.

Rea did not specify what the "leakage" was. But Courthouse observers recalled that there has been mysterious releases of information on Grand Jury indictments and other matters in the past year prior to office release of such information. One "news leak" had to do with Isla Vistans indicted in connection with riots and bombings there.

Another case which has aroused courts and law enforcement personnel concerned the disappearance of an Isla Vista youth just prior to his conviction by a Superior Court jury in a firebombing case. The youth had been free under $10,000 bail bond. The jury had reached a verdict but there was a delay in announcing it until the following day. By that time the defendant had fled.

Rea in his summing up report also had some questions to ask.

"Why do lights burn so brightly every night at the new county jail when it is not even occupied as yet?" Rea felt a grand jury panel not tied up with criminal cases "could find out."

Also, Rea said, building department inspections are down 60 per cent in the past year and a half. Why do the same number of employees exist on the payroll of the department? Once again, he said, with extra jurors, the answer could be obtained.

An expanded Grand Jury also could find out how much welfare is fraudulent, he continued, as this is one area where the taxpayers are mighty curious.

"Some responsible officials say it is as high as 25 per cent," he said.

Redistricting of county brings out many rumors

A special county committee to study redistricting of the five supervisorial districts - in line with the 1970 census and the one-man one-vote principle - hasn't begun work yet; it was only named last Monday.

But already other people - inside and outside the County Administration Building - are at work conjecturing what the new district boundaries might be.

Charter president Tom Stieglitz of the Goleta Valley Citizens Planning Group has now gone on record warning against

McGovern plans announcement

SHIPPENSBURG, Pa. (UPI)—Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., officially will announce his presidential candidacy Monday on network television from Sioux Falls, S.D.

McGovern said he will pledge to conduct "an authentic, fulfilled campaign" in 1972 in contrast to the 18-day campaign he waged in 1968 after the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

"I plan to enter all the principal primaries because that is where I think the nomination will be won," he said.

rumors of attempts at possible gerrymandering.

Stieglitz referring to some Santa Barbara newspaper comments that "some county sources" have mentioned the Second District (Santa Barbara) could be expanded to take in Isla Vista in Goleta Valley.

"I wouldn't want to see any gerrymandering done," said Stieglitz. "They should not try to separate Isla Vista from the rest of Goleta Valley. Isla Vista has always been a part of the valley and should stay there."

Earlier, new Second District Supervisor Charles F. Catterlin tossed cold water on the proposal, too. He explained his district needed to lose constituents, not pick up more, as a result of the census and the need to balance population in the districts.

Another report being circulated is the possibility that the Second District give away some lower eastside areas to the contiguous First District and in part make up for it by taking in Hope Ranch Park just west of the city of Santa Barbara.

It was noted, that Third District Supervisor Daniel G. Grant might be out of a job if that happened. He is a resident of Hope Ranch Park.

Duo pianists to give concert

Howard, Patricia Barr
—Concert pianists

Performance is on Tuesday night

Third performance in the season's series will be presented by Lompoc Community Concerts Association next Tuesday, Jan. 19 at the Lompoc Theater. Guest artists are duo pianists Howard and Patricia Barr. The couple is perhaps unique in long musical association.

The two attended the same elementary, junior and senior high schools and were graduated from the same college. Their first music instruction was from the same teacher. Because of this similar training, a deep rapport is to be noted in their duo playing, regarding musical interpretation.

After eight successful seasons of trans-continental tours, wide-spread recognition of their mature work entitles them to "stand tall" among the many duo piano teams.

A two piano recital by the Barrs includes a wide variety of music seldom found on any one musical program. The styles of music will range from rare and original to piano music by the greatest composers through transcription from the modern orchestral repertoire, to intricate arrangements of popular show tunes.

On their extensive tours, the Barrs bring with them two of the widely acclaimed Baldwin SD-10 concert grands. These pianos have been credited as being a significant advance in the art of piano manufacture. The Barrs are among a small group of artists privileged to play these pianos exclusively.

Tuesday's concert has an 8:15 p.m. curtain call. Theater doors will be opened at 7:30 p.m. and admission is by membership card only. No single tickets are sold at the door. To be contacted regarding any further information is Mrs. Harold (Dorothy) Cutting, 6-8504 or 6-3802.

Dear Abby

Secretary no gem to his wife

DEAR ABBY: My very efficient secretary, who had been with me for 12 years, retired.

After several weeks of interviews, our daughter sent a 25-year-old former college friend of hers to apply for the position. Tho very plain, she appeared to be personable, competent and well-groomed, so I hired her. In the past months she has shown promise of developing into a top-notch secretary. Meanwhile my wife is furious with my daughter for sending this girl over and she's angry with me for hiring her. The reason, the girl is well endowed and she goes braless.

Good secretaries are at a premium, and I mean to keep this one, short of breaking up my home. Her going braless doesn't bother me, and besides, I feel it is her business and nobody else's. By the way, our own daughter (who is equally well endowed) goes braless, too, but this doesn't bother my wife. Now, what do you think, Abby?

NO HANKY PANKY IN PORTLAND

DEAR NO HANKY: Tell your wife to run the house and to let you run your office. Better a braless secretary than one who's brainless.

DEAR ABBY: My boy friend grew a beard and it looks crummy. The hair on his head is brown, and his beard grew in red! Also, it's very uneven and it looks like moths got into it in spots. He knows it looks funny, and he knows I don't like it, but he won't shave it off because to him it's a symbol of his independence, and he knows his parents hate it. It is for this reason that I don't ask him to please get rid of it, altho I wish he would.

Is there some way I can get him to shave it off without making him feel he would be yielding to those who have been bugging him about it?

LISA
DEAR LISA: Having made your preference known, say no more. People, like beards, grow. And one day your boy friend might outgrow the need to cling to something only because he knows his parents don't like it.

DEAR ABBY: For years, whenever my husband and I have had a quarrel, he has written his

Fern Green to be luncheon speaker

Fern Green, state president of California Women in Chambers of Commerce, will be the program speaker Monday for Lompoc Chamber of Commerce Women's Division. The luncheon is slated for noon in Valley Club.

Now a resident of the Los Angeles area, Mrs. Green became active in Women's Chamber of Commerce some years ago while a resident of Lompoc. She served as CWCC conference chairman in 1964, was an area representative, then vice president of CWCC prior to her election to the top position which she has filled since '69.

With plans for the 1971 conference in Oxnard already in motion, Mrs. Green will discuss the program and goals of the organization. Many local members are expected to attend the fall conference.

side of it to his mother, and she in return has sent (addressed to both of us) acid letters, condemning me and blaming me for ruining her son's happiness. For about a year I have refused to read her letters, so my husband has been reading these letters aloud to our children, ages 8, 13, and 16.

I have always felt that husband-wife quarrels, no matter how trivial, were private, so I have tried not to quarrel in front of our children. And I certainly would not think of writing to my parents about our differences. I've tried to get this across to my husband without success. He claims that parents should know how their children's lives are, and that our children are old enough to realize that not only "he" thinks I am in the wrong all the time.

The children ask me questions about their grandmother's letters, and I don't know what to do about the whole mess.

FED UP

DEAR FED: Some counseling from a competent, impartial third party might improve your marriage. If it doesn't, your alternative is to clear out and take the children with you. Suggest that to your husband. If you continue to hang around while he tries to punish you in the manner you describe, it's a toss-up as to who's sicker — you or your husband.

No Fun for Blondes In Hardhat Vote

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Smack in the middle of lunch break for several of New York's construction workers, a hair product company conducted a most original survey.

Using dancers from the Broadway hit show, "Applause," and starring a volunteer company of bemused hardhats, the survey disclosed among other things the revealing fact that although blondes are what gentlemen are thought to prefer it ain't necessarily so. The hardhats preferred brunettes and redheads.

More than 50 construction workers were asked, "What is your favorite color hair?" They opted equally for brunette and redhead (19 votes for each), while blondes had only 15 champions.

The girls from "Applause," garbed in gaily colored sweaters emblazoned with, "Hi, there, I'm a Beautiful Breck Girl," brightened up the lunch break with a selection of questions designed to discover just exactly what it is that's dearest to the hearts of dedicated girl-gazers.

One question: "What is your favorite hair length?" The reply (41 votes) was overwhelmingly, "Long." Only three stalwarts held out for short hair. Nine were of the opinion that medium-length hair was their favorite.

Another shock following the minority vote for blondes was the strong vote for straight hair. Twenty-seven of the girl watchers preferred straight, smooth hair. An even dozen liked wavy hair and 13 thought curly hair was the greatest.

In reply to the poser: "When you first look at a girl do you notice her hair immediately?"—29 honest men said "no." But 24 said "yes" and one individualist said, "Sometimes." He also said when asked if he preferred straight, wavy or curly hair, "It doesn't matter."

Forty-seven hardhats admitted that they consider girls their favorite lunchtime sidewalk attraction, while seven of their cohorts said they don't—but offered no substitute.

When asked how most girls react when they know the men are gazing, 11 said, "They like it." Nine said, "They smile back." And such reactions as, "They blush," or "They're embarrassed," got several votes. Single replies ranged from "They fall all over me" to "Some smile and some frown" to "They run away scared."

The girls from "Applause" topped off the construction-site beauty survey by handing out man-sized sweaters to match their own, but bearing the legend, "I Go For Breck Girls."

And the "hardhats" provided their own traffic-stopping finale with a round of applause for the "Applause" girls.

A member of the cast of the Broadway hit, "Applause," checks with a hardhat during his lunch break on whether or not he prefers blondes, curly hair and the reactions of the girls he ogles while he munches his sandwich. (Survey by Breck)

Your Birthday

well equipped to handle the unexpected, the quick turn of events that leaves so many others not knowing what to do. Your ability to take what you have to create from it whatever is suited to the present circumstance guarantees you success in adapting to the exceptional.

You have exceptional powers of intuition and should learn to rely on them more than you are inclined to do. Somewhat prone to thinking things over too long, you need to learn to relax more in the presence of your own talents and powers. In so doing you will avoid the natural pitfall of the cautious—making up your mind to act a moment too late.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

Saturday, January 16

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 20)—Spend the day with family and friends in the pursuit of happiness. Gratify your yearning for some special attention.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19)—A day which begins well—but which must be met with considerable self-control on your part if it is to end the same way.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 21)—Avoid the half-completed job. Schedule your time this Saturday so that there is room for all you must accomplish.

ARIES (March 22-April 20)—The wise Aries will clear away yesterday's business before doing anything else. Saturday fun may have to wait until evening hours.

TAURUS (April 21-May 21)—Keep in touch with the thinking of others and you should be able to please most of the people most of the time!

GEMINI (May 22-June 21)—Morning excitement must not be allowed to interfere with your plans for afternoon and evening. Continue to develop new interests.

CANCER (June 22-July 23)—Join in the activities of young people if you would make this a Saturday to remember. Your own interests take a back seat.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—Outdoor activities beckon. Take care, however, not to overdo physically. Take no chances with a budding friendship.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)—You should be able to achieve Saturday goals without taxing your physical or mental strength. Keep in touch with new inventions.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23)—Avoid going out on a limb even as you take a stand against those attitudes which another would have you adopt.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)—Seek out pleasant company today. Whom you spend this day with is far more important than at what. Don't compromise on principles.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)—A routine day which may end quite abruptly in a change of scene and a challenge to the imagination. Accept new responsibility.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Stoneware Fondue Pot Causes Her Problem

By POLLY CRAMER

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I was given an oven-proof stoneware fondue pot but now understand that such ceramic pots cannot be used for beef fondue, just cheese. They crack under intense heat from hot oil. I am now wondering if stoneware is considered in the same class as ceramics.—MRS. P. D. H.

DEAR POLLY—Dodie can get rid of the crease left when she lowers the hem of a skirt by thoroughly wetting strips of brown paper cut from a grocery bag, laying them over the crease and pressing until the paper is perfectly dry. I find this a tried-and-true method.—PEARL

DEAR GIRLS—Dodie asked specifically about the crease left in a polyester dress. Mrs. K. R. writes that she satisfactorily removed such a crease in a polyester double knit by using a spray product made for removing "permanent press" creases but that in using it directions on the can must be followed specifically.

Fabrics being made of many things and combinations of things cause the problem of having one thing work on one such fabric and then not working on another. A dry cleaner says such creases in polyester cannot be removed effectively at home as rather a high temperature is required. Then there is the danger of having a synthetic fabric melt. Professionals use a special solution plus heat and still do not insure perfect results. Sometimes the crease itself comes out but a wear mark is left along the crease line. In spite of all this, the wet brown paper method did completely remove the deep crease in the double knit fabric I used.—POLLY

"You are on the National Laws Commission," said our old friend, the unlucky expert. "You have abolished honors in duplicate play. When are you going to get rid of this anachronism in rubber bridge?"

The answer to that question is that honors will probably remain in rubber bridge forever. North America might want to eliminate them but somehow or other we don't believe that Europe will ever go along.

Now let's look at the hand that caused his latest outburst. He sat North and would have had no trouble making his no-trump game with at least one overtrick.

Playing at four hearts, South lost no time going one down when West opened his singleton spade. East took ace and returned the queen. South played his king. West ruffed and led back the 10 of diamonds whereupon South had no way to keep East from scoring tricks with the king of diamonds and another high spade.

Do you see how South could have made his contract in spite of the defense? It wouldn't have been at all difficult. He should have let East's queen of spades hold the second trick. East would have been unable to do anything better than to lead another spade.

West would still ruff South's king and still shift to the 10 of diamonds, but it would not have done him any good.

South would have gone right up with dummy's ace. Then he would lead another spade and ruff it high. After that it would have been easy to draw trumps, enter dummy with the king of clubs and discard the queen of diamonds on the fifth spade.

Forensics squads to compete at Moorpark

Preparing to travel south to Moorpark this weekend to the biggest tournament of this area, are the Lompoc and Cabrillo High speech teams.

The Cabrillo group recently returned from a Soquel tournament last weekend, with several speakers placing and one taking a first. The event was the furthest a Cabrillo team has ever traveled and provided some of the stiffest competition of the season, indicated Mr. Steve Ward the club's advisor.

Susie Fitch, a sophomore placed first in her division of humorous interpretation, out of a field of 42 competitors. Another student placing in this division was Nick La Sorsa, who took a fourth place.

Two Cabrillo girls tied for fifth place in Women's Original Oratory. They were Anne Pike and Sherri Timmer.

Gina Close placed third in dramatic interpretation, while David Bolt took fifth in Men's Impromptu.

Other participants were Carole Roth in dramatic interpretation, Shalene Morson and Dale Goodwin, both in humorous interpretation.

Today members of the Cabrillo debate team traveled to Santa Barbara City College for a debate tournament.

Tomorrow, both schools will be represented at the annual Moorpark tourney. This is an invitational event, with awards including scholarships to summer speech institutes at various colleges, as well as trophies.

Lompoc speakers will be Leslie Arneson, Mary Baney, Jo Valencia, Shawn LaFoun, Robin Ellis, Pat Schroeder, Philomena Kistle and Debbie Dyer, along with Mr. Mike Ryon, the club's advisor.

The tournament will be held at the Moorpark College campus, with judges from the surrounding vicinity.

RAINBOW
A rainbow is nice
Cuz the colors suffice
To make the eye be pleased
Our world is not right
Cuz the color of night
On people, some do not like
This great big ball of many-colored people
Gives me a strange pleasant glow
But the others, I feel
See that something is real
And the vibes of existence say "no!"
Why must it be
That none can be free
To live on this earth in peace?

How can you think
That the others do not
As you show your humanities cease?
Someday perhaps
It will fall in your laps
And your judgment you shall then pass
And if you speak wrong
You will hear the dead song
And in darkness your ignorance will last
Option: Next time you see a rainbow remember
God's promise never to bring the seas upon Man again and strive not to drown in Your own foolish pride!

Roy Howell takes top athletic honors

Outstanding in very sport he takes part in is Roy Howell, a junior at Lompoc Senior High School.

Roy has participated in sports all three years in High School and has showed superiority in all three years.

Football, basketball and baseball are the three sports he excels in. This past football season he helped lead Lompoc High School to their many victories in League and CIF play.

Roy has gained membership in the Lettermen's club through his efforts in sports.

In his spare time Roy does agricultural work on a few acres that he and his father farm. This is also his job because he considers himself self-employed in farming.

After graduation Roy plans on going to college. He would like to go to Arizona state but does not know as yet which college he will be attending. He will probably major in either P.E. or Agriculture.

Roy is a member of the LHS basketball team this year and when asked what he thought the outcome of the season will be he said, "Our basketball team is

Lompoc High gains Galine as teacher

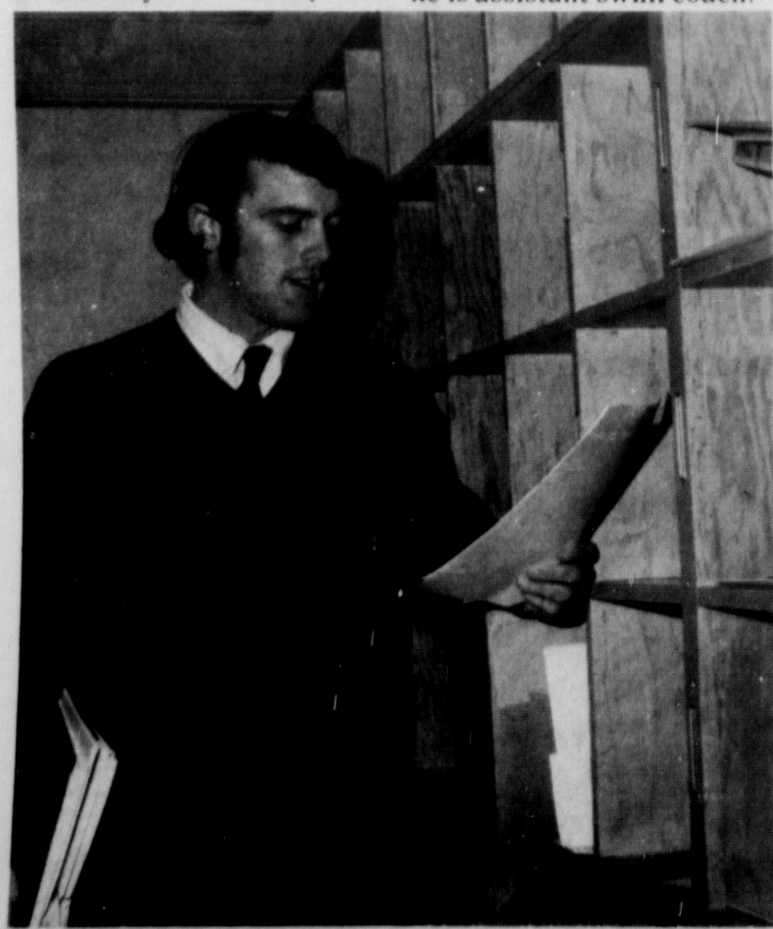

Experiencing a three month observation and teaching period at Lompoc High School is Mr. Donald Galine a student from Santa Barbara city college. Mr. Galine is 25 years old and a graduate from Hillsdale High School in San Mateo.

His major is History and his minor is in Physical education.

When asked how he was sent to Lompoc he said "completely by chance."

Mr. Galine's skill in coaching was tested when he coached at Menlo Junior College and now again at Lompoc High School where he is assistant swim coach.

MR. GALINE

Mr. Galine's comment on the city of Lompoc was, "It's nice, quaint and it's pleasant."

When asked what he thought of Lompoc High Student Body he said "It's about the same as any high school that I've seen. It's great!"

He also commented that the Lompoc High administration was "very helpful." "They have a really good program for student teachers and the observations I've been able to make were more than invigorating," he said. He also stated that "The athletic program at LHS was outstanding." "The school is really modern and very advanced on the tardy and absences system," he said.

Right now at LHS he is observing three different history classes and coaching swimming. In his spare time he attends night classes in San Luis Obispo and makes occasional trips to Santa Barbara where most of his friends are attending school.

Mr. Galine has traveled to many places around the world such as Spain, Morocco and Sweden where he lived for three months. He will only be here until March 18, when he will return to work on his masters degree.

Braves seek first place; Hillmen seek first win

By MIKE McCUSKER

The Lompoc Braves, hoping to find room at the top, entertain hard - charging Dos Pueblos in tonight's Santa Barbara County League hoop headliner.

A victory over the No. 3 appraised Chargers would lift Lompoc into a first - place tie. The Braves are one of four teams with a 2-1 SBCL record; the Chargers ride the crest with a 3-0 log.

Indeed, Dos Pueblos has not succumbed to a 3A team this campaign. Only Crescenta Valley, which by coincidence is rated third in the 4A bracket, has downed Don Volpi's bunch. DP was drubbed, 70-46, in an early season tournament.

Overall, Dos Pueblos has won 12 of 13. Dave Ellison's group is 8-4.

"We'll go with the same five, and Russ Bolinger should be ready to help out," Ellison said yesterday. The 6-4 junior, a valuable reserve, is shaking off an ankle sprain.

Roy Thomas, who rammed in a league high of 40 points at San Luis Obispo Tuesday, will go at center. His aggressiveness inside produced 20 points in each half against the Tigers.

The Lompoc supporting cast has Dallas Riley and Tim McDonald at forward, all - league Joe Brooks and Sid Dansby at guard.

Thomas will check the Chargers' offensive ace, 6-3 all-league forward Richard Stein. McDonald will open against junior center Bruce Coldren. DP's other regulars are Scott Roberts, Dan Melendez and Tom Henderson.

The Chargers "like to run and press" said Ellison. He adds, "They can be beaten." At SLO, the Braves overcame several types of press and pulled away in the fourth quarter.

Ellison has made one roster change, farming Tom Dutra to the junior - varsity squad.

ERNIE MARTIN, senior guard, scrambled with an Arroyo Grande player Tuesday to reach the ball before it went out of bounds. The Conquistadores go after their first league victory tonight at San Marcos. They return home Friday to play San Luis Obispo.

IRA BERKOW Lombardi's Mark: Spirit and Will

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—In just 11 years, from the time he became head coach of the Green Bay Packers in 1959 until his death last year, Vince Lombardi emerged as a national legend if not, in fact, a national hero. Lombardi's fame, curiously, came from being successful at a game.

Yet, says Wellington Mara, owner of the New York Giants, Lombardi could have been president, he could have been Pope. He could have been Alexander the Great and conquered the world, or St. Francis of Assisi and converted it. Mara said this on the hour-long television documentary, "A Man Called Lombardi," shown on the day of the 1971 Super Bowl game.

What Mara says may be true, but it is irrelevant. Lombardi might have been flattered by Mara's remark, but he was too much concerned with what is to wallow in what could have been.

Yet this is ample demonstration of the myth now enshrouding Lombardi. And the documentary, with narrator George C. Scott telling us that it has "nothing to do with legends and mythologies—it is about a man," does not hold true to its course. For whatever we learn about Lombardi's two sides (his domineering as balanced by his sentimentality ("he cried at the drop of a hat")) the documentary still ends on the glorifying note of Lombardi philosophizing with "America the Beautiful" sanctioning it in the background.

Lombardi was an interesting man, perhaps even a significant man. He was interesting, not just because he became a coach who won many football games and titles, but because he persevered so long before getting his chance.

At age 35 he was still a high school basketball, baseball and football coach, with classroom duties that included teaching chemistry, physics and civics at St. Cecilia's in New Jersey.

Afterward, hungry for a head coaching position with a college or pro team, he became freshman coach at Fordham, then assistant coach at Army and then for the New York Giants. At Army, under Red Blaik, some 20 of Lombardi's assistant coaching peers went on to head coaching jobs while he watched and asked friends, "Why not me, too?"

At age 46, at an age when many men have already made their mark, Lombardi finally reached his goal, as head coach at Green Bay.

Lombardi's significance, if it does transcend football, is in the well-chronicled, well-bruited, well-fabled rise of a minority son (whose grandfather, says the documentary, came from Naples and Ellis Island) who became cream in the melting pot.

Lombardi's legend is also significant. His rough, driving, compelling, fierce means to achieve victory are honored because he did win. "He said that our manhood was being tested in the game," said Willie Davis, the ex-linebacker star of the Packers.

And too often this idea that the winner is a man, the loser is unmanly, captures whole segments of the population.

Though Lombardi said that "Winning is the only thing," he modified himself by also saying, "The spirit, the will to win, these are the things that endure."

That is quite a different thing from pure winning. At age 45, Lombardi still had not realized a dream to become a famous head coach. But he had "the spirit, the will." That may have been more significant than anything that happened to him in the next 11 years.

Three golfers share lead

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UPI)—Practice makes perfect, they say, but a little luck helps, too.

Terry Dill, a veteran pro from Austin, Tex., had some of each going for him in the opening round of the $16,000 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am golf tournament and as a result today he shared a piece of the lead with scrambling Tommy Shaw and steady Bobby Nichols.

Dill, who came to the Monterey Peninsula early to get in some practice rounds and whip his game into shape, shot a four under par 33-35—68 at Spyglass Hill Thursday.

There wasn't anything too remarkable about the round except it included an eagle three on the 14th hole. To get the eagle Dill hit a 112-yard nine iron shot which he thought was misdirected.

"I wanted to hit right," Dill explained. "But it went left and about 20 feet past the pin. Then the ball grabbed and came back exactly 20 feet and fell into the cup. It sure surprised me."

Meanwhile, Shaw canned seven birdie putts to go with three bogies for a 36-32—68 at Cypress Point and Nichols followed him with a 34-34—68, also at Cypress, for a three-way lead.

While Dill, Shaw and

Meanwhile, on the Hill, Don McIntyre is gloomy about three statistics — his team's field percentage (.37), foul-line percentage (.57) and scoring average (51).

"That's not going to get the job done," he remarked. He's right — the Conquistadores are winless in the league and 3-8 overall.

McIntyre was unhappy that Arroyo Grande's Dan Lintner collected 26 points Tuesday: the game plan was to stop him at 20. But Ernie Martin "did a good job on (Pete) Lambert," limiting the good - shooting guard to 9.

The Hillmen travel to San Marcos to challenge the Royals who are 6-6 after topping No. 4 Santa Maria this week. Two juniors, 6-2 Steve Weist and 6-8 Gary MacDonald, are the top performers for Maury Halleck. McIntyre may open with a zone.

Cabrillo's starting unit is unchanged — Mike Kluge, Matt O'Brien, Mel Grayem, Bruce Atkins and Martin. Gene Stokes, a 6-3 forward who didn't fit into the box - zone game plan for Arroyo Grande, "will see action tonight."

Some of his players have not found their potential, and McIntyre thinks they could be subconsciously pressing although they appear loose. Their last SBCL success was at the end of the 1968-69 season when Righetti fell.

Another key game tonight has Arroyo Grande hosting Santa Maria; each is 2-1 and the Eagles (11-2) are rated 12th. Righetti (1-2) hosts San Luis (0-3) in the other contest.

Nichols were grabbing a share of the first-day honors. Arnold Palmer.

Jack Nicklaus and Billy Casper were at even par 72, four strokes off the pace. Tony Jacklin, the 1970 U.S. Open champ, was another stroke back at 73 along with PGA champ Dave Stockton. Defending Crosby champ Bert Yancey was even farther back at eight over 80, shot at Cypress Point.

Howie Johnson shot a 35-34—69 to trail the leaders by a stroke, while Gene Littler, Rick Massengale, Gene Ferrell, Roberto Devicenzo and Tommy Jacobs were another stroke back at 70.

The 71 group was made up of Bob Murphy, Gibby Gilbert, Tom Weiskopf, Rolf Deming and Paul Harney.

In the Crosby each pro plays a round on Pebble, Cypress and Spyglass, all pegged at even par 72, before the field (168) is cut to the low 70 and ties for the final round.

In the second round today, Dill plays at Pebble, while Nichols and Shaw are at Spyglass. Johnson, Palmer, Jacklin, Nicklaus and Casper also are at Spyglass and Stockton is at Cypress.

"No, no," objected the guy who had asked the question. "I mean the Super Bowl game here Sunday."

Ali suddenly went blank. "Oh, that," Cassius Clay said, let down some. "Who do I like? Who's playing?" "Dallas and Baltimore" somebody supplied the answer.

"I like Baltimore," Clay said. "I like Baltimore because Lenny Lyles is with that team."

Lenny Lyles used to be with Baltimore. He retired two years ago after Joe Namath picked on him all day long and the Jets beat the Colts 16-7, in the Super Bowl—but that's neither here nor there. Muhammad Ali has some other things on his mind.

Actually, if Clay had been concentrating on Sunday's Super Bowl clash he'd know the two men who are going to take turns at the throttle Sunday—Johnny Unitas and Craig Morton.

These two have about as much in common as Jim Brown and Lester Maddox, or Dick Butkus and Dave Meggsey.

Charges made by marginal players — Mecom

CLEVELAND (UPI) — New Orleans Saints owner John Mecom, the last witness to testify before a federal grand jury here recessed until February, said Thursday pro football players who charge the NFL with "blacklisting" are "marginal performers."

The grand jury, which since November has been investigating the National Football League for possible antitrust violations, was expected to call other team owners when it resumes hearings next month.

Also expected to testify is John Mackey, the Baltimore Colts tight end who led the players strike last year.

Mecom told the jury he thought Football Commissioner Pete Rozelle was being fair when he made the Saints give up two top players for the signing of tight end Dave Parks, who played out his option with San Francisco in 1967.

Parks, who testified Wednesday, said he believed the Saints were forced to give up the players to discourage other players from playing out their options.

Their only similarity is position. Both are quarterbacks. From that point they go down different roads.

There's no question which is the better quarterback. If you have any question on that score Morton is happy to answer it.

"As far as I'm concerned," he says, "John Unitas is the greatest quarterback that ever lived. I've always respected and admired him. There is no way I can compare myself with him."

Unitas has been at his trade 15 years; Morton only six. On experience alone there would have to be a noticeable difference, even if they both had the same ability—which they haven't. Unitas is way out front in that regard.

Cowboys perfect with Landry calling signals

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI)—Tom Landry had to learn to "quarterback" the Dallas Cowboys football team from the worst place in the stadium.

"But you can train yourself to see from the sideline. I move up and down the field to see what I need to see," Landry says.

Helping him keep up with the overall picture on the field is an assistant beside him who is in constant touch by telephone with assistant coaches in the press box.

Landry, a defensive back with the New York Giants before he went into coaching, began calling plays from the sidelines for quarterback Craig Morton after the Cowboys' 38-0 loss to St. Louis—the game that was the turning point of the Dallas season.

"Craig was burdening himself with the blame for our inadequacy. I don't think that was right. But in a situation like that you either switch quarterbacks or do something else. I decided to start calling plays," says Landry.

The Cowboys won the next seven games and wound up in the Super Bowl matched against the Baltimore Colts in the Orange Bowl Sunday afternoon.

Large Toronto turnout sees Lakers score

United Press International

The National Basketball Association waited too long to return to Toronto but it didn't wait long enough before going back to Rochester.

Toronto is the place where the first NBA game was played back in 1946 but the franchise folded at the end of that season. The NBA didn't decide to schedule another league game there until Thursday night when the Cincinnati Royals played a "home" game against Los Angeles in the Canadian city.

It was obvious the Canadians had missed pro basketball as 11,589 fans showed up to watch the Lakers beat Cincinnati 126-120.

Rochester Game Flops

Rochester was a league city from 1948 until 1957 when the Royals were shifted to Cincinnati but the NBA has periodically scheduled games there ever since the Royals moved. It may be a while before the league schedules a Buffalo-Portland game there again, however. Only 1,339 fans showed up to see the two expansion teams as Buffalo scored a 119-113 triumph.

In other action, Detroit edged Cleveland 108-106. Chicago topped Philadelphia 108-103. Phoenix downed New York 107-88 and Seattle topped Baltimore 114-110.

Jerry West scored 33 points and Wilt Chamberlain added 30 to give the Lakers the victory over the Royals. Veteran Johnny Green paced the losers with 27.

Buffalo closed the gap on Portland in the "expansion derby" by knocking off the Trail Blazers. Buffalo now has 13 victories while Portland has 16. Bob Kauffman scored 30 points for Buffalo.

Sports Nuts And Jolts

(In place of the usual nuts and jolts, here is a choice morsel on my second love — the Navy. Warning: It may be hazardous to military men.)

Holy chicken regis! Reports have infiltrated the outside world that there is a movement to humanize military life for the enlisted puke — I mean man. After years of wringing their mitts and moaning, "Nobody seems to be re-enlisting these days," someone accidentally created a brainstorm: "Say, maybe if we square away the military, people won't be in such a hurry to muster out of it." Ever notice the similarity between prison and service lingo? Both establishments have lifers and short-timers, who are allotted large quantities of crap details to remind them that Crime Doesn't Pay and War Is Hell.)

Anyway, various goodies have been proposed for the improvement of personnel morale — longer hair styles, beer in the barracks, janitors to pick up the beer cans, more privacy, less reveille. What's more, by boosting the pay and cutting the bull, the military might entice a higher caliber of mind into its career ranks. Should this sound like a slam on the lifer intellect, it is based not only on observation but also on the research of a Navy journalist. One of my more thrilling duties was to write testimonials on re-enlistments and retirements. Out of deference to the unendowed, I never mentioned their GCTs or ARIs. The typical total made an impressive golf score, but not much else.

As they exist, the Armed Forces inevitably provide a shelter for down - and - outers who prefer being wards of Uncle Sam to taking their chances on the outside. The service is a halfway house between a hippie commune and a rest home. NCO: No Chance Outside. Petty officer: Just that.

Because of their occupational pettiness, many salts are against military reformation. As Tom Tiede, Newspaper Enterprise Association's astute investigative reporter, pointed out in a recent series, some career vets fear loosening of regulations as threat to their authority. Well, you cannot humanize the sub-human. Behind many a crow or hunk of brass resides a maladjusted mind and a spine supported strictly by chicken regis. Oh, the service life is not the life for a thinking man, you see; it's fine to serve your country; but as a robot? Not me.

Folks, don't get me wrong. I don't wear shaggy hair, blow up banks or spit on the flag. My only pre-draft protest was refusing to spitshine my shoes as an ROTC cadet. (Never could figure what those swill-minded sergeants were doing on a college campus.) In place of spit, I applied 5-Day Deodorant Pads and the shoes somehow survived their Rotsee career.

Although I was not a Marine and thus cannot be rotten to the Corps, let me remind you that there is an essential rottenness about the Armed Forces, to wit: You surrender your rights to protect your rights. Who needs the Constitution when you've got the UCMJ? Skip the Ten Commandments; they were superseded by the Ten General Orders. It's OK to believe in God — but remember, we all work for the admiral (general). Yessir, it's ironic.

Show you what I mean. After escaping that asylum called boot camp, I reported to Glynco, Ga., and received the morale - boosting word that base regis forbade civvies for non-POs. All of a sudden (thank goodness it isn't war time) you swap your shirt for a jumper, full-time. Further enhancing the hassle, you are permitted to store civilian clothes (proceeds to the Navy Exchange) at the locker club outside the base.

So, picture a summer day and you're all set for the Golden Isles. Do you jump into your trunks and yell Charge? No. You climb into that precious uniform, change at the locker club (after facing gate inspection) — and repeat the routine when you return. Yes, where else but Glynco could a guy sit down to spaghetti in a white suit? However, it was great training for ship life, where civvies again are out of bounds to EMs.

O, the barracks life is not too keen but who am I to bitch? It's better than sleeping in a cold and lonely ditch. Nevertheless, my term would have been just as enjoyable without a first - class jackass stomping around at reveille, spouting foul poetry and rattling racks while promising a report chit if you don't turn to on the double even though it's two hours until muster and you just stood a mid-watch over some drunken first classes. Yet the duty bird wasn't so gung-ho at midnight when the base revelers were trying to forget about it all.

I wrote a pleasant essay on barracks life for publication in the base sheet I edited, but my division officer lost it after the XO rejected it. Of the seven (7) Public - affairs officers I worked for, the only guy with newspaper experience had filed papers in Circulation. This helps account for the No. 1 principle of military public relations (internal or external): Never tell it as it is. Tell it as the admiral (general) wants it to be.

As I was saying, forget about freedom of the press in the service. Being a reform - minded reporter, I was somewhat discouraged. Then came the big break — transfer to a sea - going admiral's staff that needed a journalist like I needed a canvas rack and 70 - second showers. The biggest news item happened during our war games when an "enemy" sub surfaced through our garbage trail, undetected by radar. But I wasn't concerned with news items; I was having too much fun swabbing decks, sanding picture frames and carrying cruise boxes. JO was short for janitor, not journalist. And like all big shots, I had a shipload of auxiliary titles: Burn-Bag PO, Soda-Pop PO, Damage Control PO, Education PO. Needs of the Navy, they call it. In the land of the free and home of the brave, you're just a professional slave.

Still, I was grateful for making second class (E-5) on that tour since it entitled me to head - of - the - line chow privileges. However, even at sea on a ship older than most of the men and many of the officers, we had to switch from dungarees to uniform of the day to dine on coldcuts and powdered milk.

Yessir, that Navy chow was almost worth standing around for on a sweltering deck. What it lacked in quality it further lacked in variety. I never met a guy off the unfortunate Forrestal who didn't bitch about getting roast beef every other meal. Our liner served plenty of beef, and it was so bad that somebody made a movie about it: "Poor Cow." Of course there's the canteen if you don't like the mess, but you're paying more now and enjoying it less.

Anyway, ship over for the bennies.

Hat trick caps Esposito's bad day

United Press International All in all it was just one of those days for Phil Esposito, and you couldn't much blame the usually ebullient Boston center for sounding pessimistic.

First his dog got caught in a patch of burrs and a visit to Puppy Castle cost Esposito $30. Then Esposito had to shovel snow in front of his home, a chore he doesn't like. To top it all, he had a bad cold and was coughing every few minutes.

Just a bad day all around. Fortunately for Esposito, though, he was able to escape his miseries temporarily by going to work Thursday night. He came up with his fifth hat trick of the season, setting a modern National Hockey League record, and added three assists for a six-point night as the Bruins routed the Los Angeles Kings, 9-5, to regain first place in the East Division.

Other NHL Results Elsewhere in the NHL, Phil Goyette scored both goals against his former St. Louis teammates to give the Buffalo Sabres a 2-1 victory over the Blues. Doug Favell turned in his first shutout of the season as the Philadelphia Flyers beat the Toronto Maple Leafs, 3-0; Jean Pronovost converted a penalty shot to provide the Pittsburgh Penguins with a 2-2 tie against the Detroit Red Wings; and Murray Oliver's late goal lifted the Minnesota North Stars to a 3-3 standoff with the Montreal Canadiens.

After 42 games, Esposito now has 41 goals and 43 assists for 84 points and he seems well on his way toward breaking all kinds of league records. However, he did his best to avoid the subject even after his tremendous performance.

Asked about his chances of breaking former teammate Bobby Hull's season record of 58 goals, Esposito replied "What if I get hurt? I don't really like to think about it. If I start thinking about it I'll start fussing. Two years ago I pressed for 97 points and I was irritable at home and everything else."

The victory enabled Boston to move back into first place, a single point in front of the idle New York Rangers.

Hallock's appointment was announced Thursday in a news conference by Dr. Kline Swygard, athletic faculty representative of Oregon State University and president of the Pacific-8 Council.

Hallock was not at the conference. He had returned to his Denver office after attending NCAA meetings in Houston. He has been WAC commissioner since 1968.

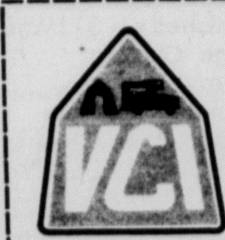

Hamilton, former Navy coach who was named executive director when the conference was formed in 1959, had announced last September that he would retire in September.

Hilton laments holding

MIAMI (UPI)—Don't get fooled Sunday.

Don't let those offensive linemen take you out when you're sitting there watching the Super Bowl game on TV.

Those offensive linemen hold. They're not supposed to, but they all do.

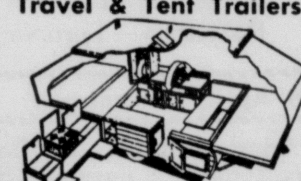

Roy Hilton, the Baltimore Colts' defensive end, verifies that. He ought to know. He has to play against those offensive linemen.

"All great offensive linemen are great holders," Hilton says, putting a bit of extra emphasis on the word great.

"They have great quick hands and this is the only way they become great offensive linemen. What makes a 'great' holder is he's able to hold and get away with it. They do quite a bit of it.

"An offensive tackle may come and hook his arms around you just long enough to stop your charge, and before the official throws a flag your pass rush is stopped and he looks great. This is what your great offensive lineman has to do."

team for the rest of the season.

Ferguson ordered the attorneys for the opposing sides to return to court Monday to argue on the question of a preliminary injunction against the NBA.

The NBA claims Seattle is in violation of the league constitution by playing Haywood because his class at the University of Detroit hasn't graduated yet. Haywood originally signed with Denver of the ABA last season on "hardship" grounds but this season he claimed his contract was violated and he signed with Seattle.

Caldwell was a star of the Atlanta Hawks when he signed a five-year $1.1 million contract with the Carolina Cougars of the ABA on Oct. 30, 1970. Caldwell's contract had terminated with Atlanta at the end of the 1970 season but under an NBA reserve clause, a player is bound to the team for at least one more year at not less than 75 per cent of his previous salary if he has not signed a new contract.

Since Caldwell made $60,000 last year, the Hawks would have had to pay him $45,000. But Judge Edwin Stanley said, "Atlanta was fully aware of its contract provisions and for some unknown reason affixed the compensation at $40,000. Since Atlanta failed with the terms of its renewal option, Caldwell becomes a free agent and eligible to negotiate a contract with another club."

THINK ABOUT IT!

BY BOB LILLEY

When is a mobile home a structure and not a trailer? This County is still trying to determine a way. The best test available now is by taxation. If the home is licensed (and taxed) by the Department of Motor Vehicles it's a trailer, and can only be placed on those sites zoned for trailer occupancy. If you can prove to the County that it is indeed not a trailer — and complies with the State and County Building codes — then it's the same as any private residence and can go in a residential zone. We have a feeling the picture will get more complicated before long!

Careful of Salt Intake; Excess Causes Problems

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I do not use much salt, only while cooking vegetables. The rest of my family adds more at the table. Would it be possible to see you to comment in your column on the effects of salt?

Dear Reader—With salt, like other things, there is an optimal amount. Only under unusual circumstances is it necessary to add salt to the diet to prevent medical problems.

The water in the body contains about the same amount of salt as sea water and it is essential to maintain about that much salt in the body. The food we eat contains a lot of sodium, which is the important element of salt. In fact, it is very hard to construct a good diet which is low in sodium or salt.

Meat, milk and vegetables all contain some sodium and even city water often contains more sodium than is allowable if a person really needs to restrict sodium. The normal kidney is able to conserve sodium if the body needs it and filters out water with little salt in it.

The most common reason for needing salt added to the diet is excessive sweating, for example, from heavy manual labor or exercise in the heat. Sometimes salt pills are advisable in these circumstances. Other than this, the big problem with salt is that people may use too much.

In some people, excess salt contributes to high blood pressure. For awhile some investigators thought there was something magic to rice and rice diets became very popular in treating high blood pressure. It was soon learned that the magic in rice was the absence of sodium. A salt-restricted diet is still a good treatment for high blood pressure, particularly if there is associated accumulation of fluid. In fact, some of the medicines we give people for high blood pressure act in part by causing the kidney to eliminate excess sodium.

Some authorities have suggested that the excess use of salt, so characteristic of Americans, is related to developing fatty deposits in the arteries but this is only theoretical at the moment.

Of course, people with heart failure causing accumulation of fluid, liver disease or kidney disease must be particularly careful not to eat much salt. While medicine can help prevent the accumulation of salt and water, the role of salt restriction is still important.

Most healthy people can use a moderate amount of salt and have no ill effects from it.

You are not missing anything you need for health by not adding a lot of salt to your food and hopefully the rest of your family is not doing too much harm to themselves, but your practice is more healthy.

DENVER (UPI) — Colorado capitol building superintendent Herbert Cogswell made sure everything was on the up and up Tuesday for Gov. John A. Love's inaugural ceremonies.

When Cogswell learned a 19gun salute was planned to honor the governor, he asked for and obtained an air pollution variance.

Justice blind?

There is so much wrong with our courts that one more complaint is not likely to shake things up, even if it does come from the nation's most famous lawman.

Writing in the FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin, director J. Edgar Hoover charges that "a witness or victim involved in court proceedings in some jurisdictions may be subjected to such callous, indifferent or belittling treatment that he comes away bewildered and thoroughly disgusted with our judicial machinery, his sense of fair play and justice shattered."

At times, he says, when people appear as witnesses in court, "some jurists permit defense counsels to browbeat and intimidate them — including law enforcement officers — until it is questionable as to who is on trial."

At other times, witnesses never even get a chance to testify. Hoover cites the case of a motorist whose car had been smashed into and who repeatedly took time off from his job to answer summonses only to find on each occasion that the accused had ignored his summons and that apparently court officials couldn't care less.

Most Americans, fortunately, will never have to see the inside of a courtroom, either as complainants or defendants. There is one group in society, however, for whom the law's delays and the law's intricacies are becoming an increasing impediment to the performance of their jobs, as well as a serious demoralizing factor.

This is the group noted by Hoover above — law enforcement officers.

Space shuttle

Lompoc's Space Shuttle Coordinating Committee has quite a task before it.

That task it is to focus national attention on the state of California, and more specifically Vandenberg AFB, as the site for the nation's proposed space shuttle program.

That's right, a committee from little Lompoc has that responsibility, as of right now.

A state committee has been proposed to handle it, but so far that committee has not been formed and time is running out. The decision as to where the shuttle project will go is expected to be made this summer.

So Lompoc's committee is IT! The committee, and the community, needs to assume the attitude that if the job is to be done, they will have to do it. There is not time to wait for the state committee and then correlate the work with that group.

Lompoc needs to charge ahead right now, shooting for the top, and if higher level groups come along, and take over, so much the better. As committee members pointed out the other night, they do not particularly care about the prestige or the recognition for any accomplishment, they merely want the project and its benefits here.

If funds need to be raised, and it appears considerably will be needed, if public relations firms need to be hired, studies need to be made, presentations need to be prepared and given, news stories need to be generated and so on and so forth, then the Lompoc committee needs to get started.

Any hesitation, thinking the state or any other committee might handle a situation and there will be duplication, could be disastrous.

Let there be duplication if necessary. Let there be a slight overspending of funds if necessary. The object is the space shuttle project and if, in the end, it is located in California, at VAFB, it will provide the state and Lompoc with its greatest economic boost in history.

It is ironic, and a little inconceivable, that until very recently nothing has been done within the state to bring such a gigantic program to California; that politicians at the governor level, that the state's U.S. senators and congressmen have done no more than merely announce a task force will be formed to bring this project to the state.

The state's unemployment rate is one of the highest in the nation. This program would lower it dramatically. California is a leader in the aerospace industry yet that industry has as yet done little to interest the state or the nation in the space shuttle program.

The project can mean fantastic progress for Lompoc and the area.

It could result in increased property valuation, to the benefit of

When the cop on the beat makes an arrest today, he can look forward to spending hours and hours for days and days waiting in court to testify, only to learn that the case has been continued (postponed) again — if, indeed, it is not thrown out entirely because he committed some technical infraction of the defendant's rights.

Every policeman sitting around in a courtroom is obviously one less policeman guarding the safety of the community.

There is no simple law we can pass or no sweeping reform we can institute that can remedy this situation. The right of every citizen to a fair trial, to every advantage of due process of law, is one of the cornerstones of our system of justice.

Only the men who actually administer that system, the individual judges and lawyers, can ensure that in discharging their duty to protect the rights of an accused they do not forget the rights of his victim, or of society at large.

It is true that it is better that 10 guilty men go free than that one innocent man be unjustly punished.

But when things come to such a pass that, as Hoover says, we sometimes can't tell who is the defendant and who is the witness, when people come away from court with their sense of fair play and justice shattered, we are in as much peril of losing our freedom as if we were routinely to convict 10 innocent men in hopes of catching the one guilty one.

taxpayers; more competitive prices, to the benefit of citizens; more business, to the benefit of businessmen, and more jobs, to the benefit of our unemployed.

Wouldn't be too bad, would it?

Spy ring needed

WASHINGTON (NEA) The establishment of the type of ground intelligence organization in North Vietnam essential for success in bringing out prisoners of war is not the impossible task high officials believe it to be.

They have been discouraged by incredible blundering in past attempts to introduce agents into the north. Men have been dropped in by parachute. Even at night, this makes them easy targets, subject to quick capture. Others have gone in with insufficient training, inadequate cover stories to account for their sudden appearance in the north or short on northern friends and relatives to front for them.

In short, there has been too little preparation and too much gung ho (do it like the movies) spirit.

As a result, the agent network in the north, including that run by the South Vietnamese and other allies, is so fragmentary as to be inconsequential in the war.

Yet an adequate net is of vital importance for the war effort — not only for prisoner rescue but in a host of other ways as well.

It could provide: —Critical information on military, economic and political weaknesses.

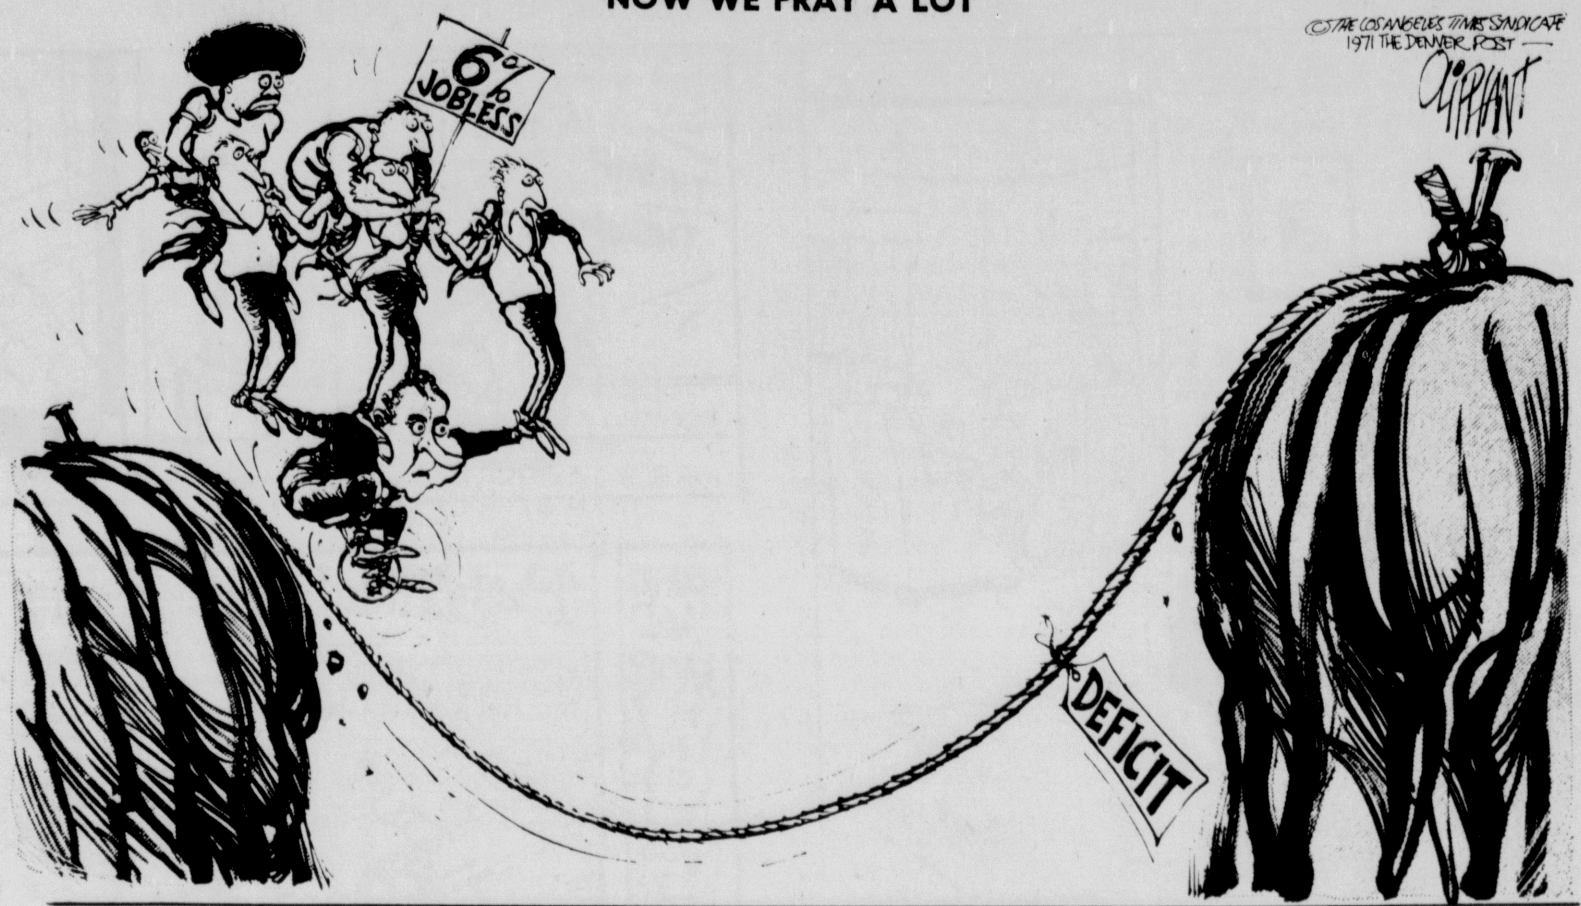

—Information on dissident groups within the population, the major causes and extent of popular dissent.

—A flow of other military, political, economic transport and supply information essential to decision making in Saigon and Washington.

Our present knowledge in these areas is fragmentary, not the precise details necessary on which to base political and economic action or military decisions.

The lack of this knowledge is an open but unpublicized problem at the White House, the State Department and the Department of Defense.

A major problem in North Vietnam is the existence of a highly efficient system of counterespionage similar to that employed in Castro's Cuba, in Mao's Red China and in prewar Japan. Each small group of families (between five and 10) has one man or one family responsible for spying

Capitol report by Bruce Biossart

No pullback

WASHINGTON (NEA) The White House is currently engaged in important talks on U.S. military force levels, but the prospect is running strongly against major cuts in the 310,000 men stationed now in Western Europe.

The bind on the administration is tremendous. President Nixon is looking hard for ways to cut the huge defense budget, and that U.S. contingent attached to NATO is an attractive target. Furthermore, he has promised, under his "doctrine" to lower America's profile around the world — and there also could be pressure next year on Capitol Hill from liberal lawmakers who want large sums diverted to home needs.

On the surface the signs might seem good. The newly initiated Bonn-Warsaw pact recognizing the post-World War II Oder-Neisse river line as the Polish-German border, and the Bonn-Moscow renunciation-of-force treaty agreed to in August appear to lessen East-West tensions.

But the Soviet Union is offering no reductions in its large forces committed to the "defense" of eastern Europe yet seen always as a threat to the West. In October, at Limerick, Ireland, on his quick European swing, Nixon stoutly reaffirmed a heavy U.S. troop commitment to NATO.

The matter has another major facet. It is not at all clear that bringing home even a sizable part of our force in Europe would really produce substantial savings.

The present U.S. cost in Europe of maintaining those 310,000 men is around $3.2 billion a year. Critics' figures up to $14 billion are absurd on their face, involving calculations with regard to the Atlantic fleet, backup ground forces stationed elsewhere. These elements would stand as continuing cost factor no matter what pullback we made.

The more critical point is that the same statement would apply to any ground forces brought home from Europe. Unless they were disbanded, the outlook is they would cost as much or more to maintain here as overseas.

Costs associated with the present heavy two-way flow of men and materials naturally would go down if the overseas forces were cut. But experts say the savings would be offset by new housing and other operating and maintenance costs necessary to keeping the returned force in being at home.

With 200,000 U.S. military men stationed in West Germany alone, the Bonn government estimates it contributes some $500 million a year to our on-station costs.

The Euro-Group, comprised of Western Europe's defense ministers, is laboring at the problem of easing the U.S. overseas burden still further.

Still, as indicated, big savings could come only from disbanding large returned forces. The President's foreign policy advisers are looking at that one, even though the chance of such action seems remote.

First, Nixon has only recently restated our commitment. To pull out and disband large forces would be to rip away the underpinnings of that commitment and leave Western Europe in a very shaky state. Our credibility as an on-the-ground partner and ally would be gravely harmed.

Short of some presently unforeseen agreement for a mutual East-West reduction of forces, a U.S. pullback is thus very unlikely. Most of the 310,000 in Europe will stay.

The "lowered American profile" of the Nixon doctrine translates, of course, into reduced U.S. presence virtually everywhere. The outlook today is that vital exceptions will be made, with jutting peaks of American force showing above a perhaps generally lower line.

"Color the Mediterranean red and color Western Europe red," said one U.S. expert, meaning we still see big military-naval commitments there as no less important to security than defense of our own mainland and our Alaska-Hawaii outposts.

We don't know

Researchers with New York State's Department of Environmental Conservation have discovered mercury levels in preserved fish that are twice as high as levels at which the Federal Drug Administration now bars fish from the market.

Some of the fish were caught in New York lakes as long ago as 1927.

Does this mean that the current mercury scare is just that — a scare? Have some Americans been eating mercury-contaminated fish for 40 years, and perhaps longer, with no ill effects? Or have there been effects we are not afraid of?

The answer to all these questions is that we don't know.

Only about a dozen preserved fish have been examined so far and no reputable scientist would have based a judgment on such a small sample.

We do know that in high concentrations, mercury can cause brain damage, blindness and birth defects. But are worldwide mercury levels rising and, if so, at what point would they constitute an outright peril?

We don't know.

By burning fossil fuels and releasing carbon dioxide into the atmosphere, are we creating a "greenhouse" effect which will eventually melt the polar ice caps? Or, at the other extreme, by filling the air with dust and other particles, are we cutting off the sun and bringing on a new ice age?

We don't know.

Is the Atomic Energy Commission's present standards for permissible radiation from nuclear power plants as "safe" as the AEC says? Or is there absolutely no safe level of radiation?

We do know that environmental pollution of any kind is not good and could ultimately be disastrous, both to ourselves and all living things.

Until we do know, it is only logical that we neither run scared nor abate our efforts to curb pollution in all of its myriad forms.

THOUGHTS WHILE SHAVING

Lompoc Chamber of Commerce bulletin says that we can expect to see more vegetables growing in Lompoc Valley this coming season. Celery is expected to be one of the crops on the increase. The plant is sensitive to smog and growers will take advantage of our valley's climate to insure high quality production. Those Weight

Watchers who eat so much fish on their diets are in a quandary with this mercury situation. Actually, emphasis should be placed on the fact that the amounts of mercury taken by Weight Watchers is not all that dangerous. Float builders for the 1971 Flower Festival ought to be able to get real imaginative with the selected theme — "Fairytale."

We saw a Christmas tree still up in a front window of a home yesterday on the southside of town.

Again we make a plea to those motorists who relish going through the flooded intersections full bore and show little consideration for their fellow motorists with his windows down.

We've been forewarned that the Campfire Girls candy sale begins the end of this month.
